Kathryn Kuhlman, who always credited these wonderful miracles to the Holy Spirit, was not only an instrument of God's healing love, but she was also a wonderful teacher about God's way of life and His power. The book is filled with testimonies of many who were not only physically restored to health but who entered into a relationship with God for the first time by being spiritually reborn. The healings came about in different ways: through a 6 year old child who prayed for her family to become whole and her parents to let go of the alcohol that ruined their family, through loving, believing family members who prayed for God to restore their loved one to health, and through Ms. Kuhlman herself being the Holy Spirit's agent of both leading the lost to God and physically restoring sick and damaged bodies.Pastor George Billington[...]Helping the church to grow in Christian love, relationship and maturity

Re: I believe in miracles. I attended Kathryn Kuhlman's services, and I am sure I witnessed miracles taking place. I talked to one of her workers who verified that she met people who had been healed in past services and their cases were genuine. And the ones I saw dancing around in front of 2000 people screaming "I am healed" and openly weeping with joy, surely looked "healed" to me.I have never met another "faith healer" with the following or the number of claims of healings that Kuhlman had. I am always amazed at people who "check up" on the personal lives of such people and discount their whole ministry or life of "good deeds" and "dismiss" them with a wave because they did not lead an "impeccable life" themselves.Because of the judgment of others, those who must meet a higher standard than the rest of us are "forced" to "lie" if they are to have a ministry outside of their private lives. People want "saints" of anyone who "works for" God.God works through human beings. We are all human. Because Kuhlman acted as an "intercessor" or "point of belief" at a moment in time, God worked miracles through that woman. And He is still performing miracles today through the intercession of others, if the ones who are healed are open to the experience. But many prevent themselves from receiving a healing because of judgment of themselves or others.

Kathryn Kuhlman (1907 - 1976) was an evangelist who held "Miracle" meetings in which she preached the Gospel and people were healed of all sorts of medical conditions. Kuhlman hated the term "faith-healer", and always gave credit to the Holy Spirit for any miracles of healing that occurred in one of her healing crusades.This book is a case study of about 30 healings. Each story is about 10 pages in length, and each is well documented. Details are given for each miracle healing, how the sickness began, the prognosis, the healing, and the aftermath. Most, if not all of these cases had their healings confirmed by their doctors.If Miss Kuhlman was a fraud, as many of her critics claim, then this book (and two others that follow), stand in contrast to the critics. The stories stand on the evidence of the healing itself, and the supplementary documentation by medical doctors, family members, and friends. The cases presented are so detailed, they actually invite investigation; therefore, it is inconceivable that Kuhlman would present these stories of healing if there were not in fact true.Read the stories for yourself. As Fox News motto states, "We report - you decide".I wish I could have seen Miss Kuhlman in person.If after reading this book, you are interested in learning more about Miss Kuhlman, I suggest reading the following biography: Daughter of Destiny: Kathryn Kuhlman. This biography presents an unvarnished look at Kathryn Kuhlman.

It was so great. You felt the presence of God and the Anointing as you read this book and I even had miracles while reading it.

This book contains the account of a miraculous healing that happened to a member of my family. I know it to be true. Seeing its reality and power has transformed my understanding of God and His love for us. It is a wonderful book. Every page is encouraging.

My wife and I were so encouraged to read of all the miracles that God did through our sister of past years. Very well written and very encouraging for those who desire to press into God by reading the works God has done through others.

The number one book on every Christian's list is the Bible.....this is number #2 on my list!! It is a most inspiring book of true stories listing many physical healings that God performed for real believers and non-believers in changing their lives and in bringing them closer to His Son Jesus! You won't be able to put it down! The touching stories of God's love will bring tears to your eyes and you will be forever changed, too.

Next to the Bible itself, this is the most incredible book I have ever read. It took me forever to read because I was so blown away after each chapter, I had to wait to catch my breath before reading on. I've read several books on miraculous healings but they never went in depth in the people's lives to really show what a true miracle it was. This is a must read for any Christian. It will remind you that all things are possible through Christ and will also take the pressure off of trying to perform for Him in order to receive from Him.
